No Flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue;
With the Stars in a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 28, 1865.

Impracticable Ideas.

Since the recent Federal successes have had time to operate upon the public mind, there is no doubt that the Southern people have commenced to experience that change of sentiment that will ultimately eventuate in peace. The leaven has commenced to work, and the slow but sure effect of the present situation of affairs, and exchange of sentiment in the South will be manifested after awhile, when one of the principal insurgent States resumes its position in the Union and sets an example for the rest. That they are tired of the war and sick of its results, there is no reason to doubt; and it is only a stubborn pride that holds them in antagonism to a Government they are already powerless to effectually resist. Peace rumors come to us by every day's report over the wires, and every day shows some change of programme, that is only more absurd, as a general thing, than those that have preceded. It is not to be doubted that efforts tending towards peace are in progress; that individuals have made attempts to bring about a consummation so ardently desired both North and South; but our Government has sent no envoys to Richmond; has made no formal overtures to the Confederate States as such; and after a careful survey of the state of Southern sentiment, as expressed by the public press and in Congressional and Legislative debates, we are forced to believe that, while peace may not be distant, the official announcement of it will not be immediate. The Government at Richmond, with Davis at its head, has no interest in a peace that comes without independence. All the Southern leaders have committed themselves too positively to the rebellion to expect anything from reconstruction, or rather, from submission to the law, and that is the real contingency upon which we may expect peace. Even supposing that President Lincoln should, as we sincerely trust he will, incline to be lenient, and offer an amnesty in the most ample sense possible, it could not so include the leaders of the rebellion as to make such a peace acceptable to them while there is a possibility of success remaining; and when the tide of defeat overwhelms them entirely, Mexico offers a privilege of sanctuary that they prefer to depend upon rather than to remain candidates for Federal amnesty; an amnesty that would restore Davis and his co-conspirators to all the privileges they enjoyed before the war, would hold the nation up to the scorn of all the world, and the contempt of history. The boon of life, and a passport to some other land is the utmost they can ask, and with only this to expect Richmond has no earnest desire for peace. When Charleston and Wilmington are ours, and Mobile is threatened by our forces at her gates, then North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama may with opened eyes incline their hearts to Union. It becomes the Government to make war the most potent pacificator. Our armies disseminate peace propositions with every successful march; make converts at every battle won, and just so fast as we are successful and carry the war the South commenced into Southern territory, do we give the smothered Union sentiment of the South time and opportunity to assert itself, and thereby hasten the day when we can again have peace.

To-day's dispatches assure us that the rebel Cabinet have resigned; that the principal rebel Generals have declined to assume the positions that have been assigned to them, and that their Congressmen had, many of them, abandoned their positions and gone to their homes. This may be one of the unfounded rumors of the day or may be confirmed. If it be the fact, it [illegible] the dissolution of the Confederacy, as it surely manifests that a want of confidence and harmony exists among Richmond rulers. Whether it be true or not, the time will come when such will be the case, and when the final crash of dissolution occurs, the Southern people who have been victimized and have suffered as a consequence of the act of secession, will be the ones from whom their late rulers may most certainly look for vengeance, and from whom they may dread to meet the judgement due their many crimes.

FROM THE DALLES AND ABOVE.—The Mountaineer says it is rumored that Rothkopp, charged with gold dust robbery, signifies his willingness to turn State's evidence.

McRobinson, arrested for assault on a physician at the Dalles, resisted an officer with a drawn chair, and was brought to terms by a revolver muzzle. He was held to $3,000 bail.

The weather at Dalles on Sunday last stood at 10° above zero.

The steamer Idaho had gone into winter quarters at the mouth of Chenoweth creek.

SOMETHING OF A CHANGE.—On the 3d of November the Richmond Sentinel published what it considered as a military balance sheet, showing that the South had held its own throughout the year—had lost nothing, while the Federal Government reminded them strongly of Hannibal's campaign against the Romans.

The Democratic papers seem to be copying this with infinite gusto even at this late day. If they really enjoy its tone so much, it strikes us they ignore all the Federal successes of the last three months, or else have forgotten that Savannah and Wilmington have any importance.

THE CHAPMAN.—The schooner J. M. Chapman, which sailed from Shoalwater Bay, November 1st, has not been heard from since. She was owned by Morgan & Co., oyster dealers, of San Francisco, and commanded by Captain August Richards. Caesar Crellin was a passenger. Vessel and cargo were valued at $15,000.

FROM THE COUNTRY.—A farmer from Marion county informs us that January has been a good month for plowing, and that until the late freeze came on quite an amount of ground was preparing for cultivation.

Henry R. Schoolcraft, the Indian historian, died on the 12th of December, at his residence in Washington.

Foreign papers say that nothing can be more magnificent than the vintage this year in all parts of France. The proprietors of vineyards are actually puzzled to know what to do, their usual supply of casks having long been filled, and the coopers, although at work day and night, are utterly unable to supply the demand.

A Word about the Mining Regions.

OREGON CITY, Jan. 22, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Having been a resident on the Columbia river or its tributaries since 1858, and since the first discovery of gold on the Similkameen and Pend d'Oreille, in that year, and having availed myself of facilities at my command, regarding discoveries and developments each succeeding year, I am prepared to speak advisedly, and through your columns propose to notice some facts of general interest in a series of letters designed to throw light for the action of the prospective flood of miners, traders and farmers attracted there by rich fields of gold and fabulously rich silver leads. I shall speak of the different localities in order as they were discovered respectively; my object not being to please the fastidious, but having an eye to business, without [illegible] to subserve.

The above mentioned localities are [illegible] on the Upper Columbia on the north and west, the waters having their origin in the mountains of British Columbia; and although they are in a measure abandoned for the more inviting prospects in the east and tending south, yet I have the means of knowing that many thousands of good miners could realize fair returns for labor expended. The French and Indians of Fort Colville go every summer to the Pend d'Oreille with their old facilities (rockers), not forgetting the usually bountiful supply of bad whisky, together with their known aversion to hard labor, and yet they realize handsome returns—never less than $[illegible] per diem. But why linger in this isolated section when the miner has only to step across the country a few days travel and find better diggings in the Kootenai country? and if not satisfied at this place they have only to pass on a few days more, bearing south of east, which will bring them into that immense extent of country known as the Salmon river mines, so popular in the summer of 1862, and including Oro Fino, Elk City, Florence, Warren's, &c., &c., all of which were partially abandoned at one time in favor of the Boise and Owyhee, though many have long since returned, and are there now, having grown rich, but owing to their seclusion are unnoticed. I have the best authority for saying that many thousands of miners could find ample remuneration in this section. But the great attraction is not here; the Boise Basin and Owyhee is the great center, and where everybody wants to go first, and I am not astonished that it is so, for here the miner can enjoy all the amenities of civilization, and risk his life and property as securely as in other camps, towns and cities in California. Our people have acted wisely in withholding the [illegible] we are better prepared to maintain so [illegible] a population as is now inevitable. But now having had two years in which to open roads, build towns and camps, organize counties, enact laws, &c., &c., we can afford to let the truth be known, and it shall be my aim to state facts only.

Respectfully, JEROME.

DEER LODGE VALLEY.—The Mountaineer says: We are permitted to make the following extract from a letter received from Deer Lodge Valley by a gentleman of this city:

Deer Lodge Valley will be second to no country on the Pacific coast, and a road once through from there to Lewiston many of the ores could be profitably shipped from there to San Francisco or Europe. There are no leads in Washoe or Arizona that compare with these Deer Lodge leads in richness. The Original lead has turned out very rich and a great many have gone over there prospecting. Some three hundred new leads have been found, all of which are rich in silver and gold, also good gulch diggings. $3,000 has been refused for 200 feet in the Original. The navigation of the Missouri and Yellowstone is given up by every one, and this country must be supplied from the Pacific coast, and a road from Lewiston via Elk City is the only practicable route. The merchants of Dalles and San Francisco, the Oregon Steam Navigation Company and the foundry men would all be greatly benefitted by the opening of this road. There is sufficient gold and silver-bearing quartz already discovered here to keep 200 twenty-stamp mills running for years; and there are lodes of almost pure copper that would then pay to work and send back by return teams to Lewiston. There are also large bodies of fine farming land in this country. It is but one year old and we have a population of 20,000, which in another year will increase to 100,000. It takes from four to five months for ox teams to make the trip from Omaha, while with a good road the trip could be made from Lewiston in twenty days. Over $50,000 worth of goods have been lost on the Missouri this season, and I think they will not risk any more on that route.

Plenty of snow here and very cold, the thermometer standing now at 18° below zero.

Since writing the above some men have come in who have been working on the Original quartz lead and report that at a depth of 25 feet they found the lead five feet wide, three of which contains 70 per cent. mineral—gold, silver and copper.

Montana City is the name of the town started near the new mines, in Jefferson county, Deer Lodge Valley.

ONE HUNDRED UNION MEN BUTCHERED IN GEORGIA.—The bloodiest tragedy of modern times was enacted a short time ago in northern Ga., at a small place called Elijah, sixty miles northeast of Dalton. A short time after the occupation of Northern Georgia by our forces last spring, 125 men, deserters from the rebel army and others, formed themselves into a company, to be known as the Walker County Home Guards, and selected a brave fellow, named Ashworth, as their leader. Upon many occasions have these hardy men done the cause some service. Three hundred rebels, under Tom Polk Edwards, on the day above mentioned, came across Ashworth's party, and took them all prisoners, including Col. Ashworth himself. A man named Markham, who was an eye-witness of subsequent events, says that the prisoners, after their surrender, were marched into a patch of wood hard by, when just one hundred out of the one hundred and twenty-five were selected, declared to be deserters from the Confederate army and sentenced, part of them to be shot and part of them to be hung. Preparations were immediately made to carry the order into execution, and two hours later the hundred poor fellows were launched into eternity, nineteen of whom were hung. The twenty-five that escaped death were released, after being compelled to witness the execution of their companions, upon the promise that they would join the rebel army. Col. Ashworth was taken away. As he was once a rebel soldier, there is no telling what unheard of cruelties are in store for him. This Tom Polk Edwards is a citizen of Tennessee, and is respectably connected. Gen. Steadman, I learn, will make an attempt to have this gang of murderers captured. If he is successful, there will be more bloody work.—Cor. N. Y. Times.

The Jackson Mississippian has a very remarkable editorial in favor of peace. It assumes that both sections have been wrong, and argues that the war was necessary in order to purge the land of bigotry, fanaticism, despotism, intolerance. Both sections must abate somewhat of their high pretensions. It says of slavery:

The North was fanatic; the South was arrogant. The North bullied; the South blustered. Slavery was the rock that shipwrecked the Ship of State. Both sides betrayed the [illegible] eagerness to keep this question ever prominent. Demagogues at the North rode into office on the [illegible] slavery hobby. The two antagonizing elements met at Washington, and there commenced the [illegible] of war—the war of wind, the sure precursor of the war of blows.

MODESTY REWARDED.—Rev. Mr. Burnham, of Manchester (N. H.), recently enlisted in the army as a private, and was sent to the rendezvous at New Haven. Next morning after his arrival he was summoned before the commanding officer of the post, and addressed: "Burnham, I see by your name here that you are a reverend. [illegible] a dozen reverends have enlisted and come here, and as you are the first who has stayed over night without asking for a Chaplaincy, I guess we'll make you Chaplain!" So they made him Chaplain of the post.

The boldness of the thieves in Havana have for some time been greatly on the increase, thus, a short time since the owner of a small cigar store, in the principal square, and close to the palace of the Captain-General, was seized and bound, whilst in an inner room, by some of these pests of society, and robbed of sixteen [illegible], whilst the robbery was crowned for boldness and dexterity by an accomplice, who meanwhile quietly took his place behind the counter and served such customers as entered.

BRITISH AID TO REBEL PRISONERS.—LETTER OF [illegible].—The President has sent [illegible] message to [illegible] in reply to Sumner's resolution [illegible] information relating to a [illegible] to give aid to [illegible] the correspondence [illegible] Lord Wharncliffe [illegible] Liverpool Bazaar [illegible] £17,000, and asked permission [illegible] to visit the military prisons [illegible] and [illegible] political [illegible] that Confederate prisoners [illegible] attention as [illegible] the issue [illegible] will not be determined by [illegible] greater or less, and [illegible] name is interwoven with American [illegible] Americans [illegible] whatever their State or [illegible]. Adams replied that it has never been [illegible] to treat with humanity [illegible] of the misguided [illegible] in this deplorable rebellion who have fallen into its hands in the regular course of the war, and that he should greatly rejoice if the efforts of such sympathy could be extended to [illegible] mental ailment, as well as to their bodily suffering, thus contributing to put an end to a struggle which otherwise is too likely to be only [illegible] by their English sympathizers.

Seward replies as follows to the application received through Adams:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON,
December 5, 1864.

SIR: I have received your dispatch of the 18th of November, No. 807, together with the papers therein mentioned, viz: a copy of a letter which was addressed to you on the 12th of November by Lord Wharncliffe, and a copy of your answer to that letter. You will now inform Lord Wharncliffe that permission for an agent of the Committee indicated by him to visit the insurgents detained in the military prisons of the United States and to distribute among them seventeen thousand pounds of British gold is disallowed. Here it is expected that your correspondence with Lord Wharncliffe will end. That correspondence will necessarily become public. On reading it the American people will be well aware that while the United States have ample means for the support of prisoners, as well as for every other exigency of the war in which they are engaged, the insurgents who have madly rushed into that condition are suffering no privations that appeal for relief to charity, either at home or abroad. The American people will be likely to reflect that the sum thus insidiously tendered in the name of humanity constitutes no large portion of the profits which its contributors may be justly supposed to have derived from the insurgents by exchanging with them arms and munitions of war for the coveted productions of immoral and enervating slave labor. Nor will any portion of the American people be disposed to regard the sum thus ostentatiously offered for the relief of captured insurgents as a too generous equivalent for the devastation and desolation which a civil war promoted and protracted by British subjects had spread throughout the States which before were eminently prosperous and happy. Finally, in view of this officious intervention in our domestic affairs, the American people can hardly fail to recall the warning of the Father of our Country directed against two great and intimately connected public dangers, namely, a sectional faction and foreign intrigue. I do not think the insurgents have become debased, although they sadly wandered from the ways of loyalty and patriotism. I think that, in common with all our countrymen, they will rejoice in being saved by their considerate and loyal Government from the grave insult which Lord Wharncliffe and his associates, in their zeal for the overthrow of the United States, have prepared for the victims of this unnatural and unholy rebellion.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
WM. H. SEWARD.

THE VOTE FOR PRESIDENT.—The majorities for Lincoln, as given in the latest returns published, are as follows and are probably correct: New York, 6,740; Pennsylvania, 20,461; Massachusetts, 77,997; Illinois, 31,088; Indiana, 28,[illegible]; Wisconsin, 7,582; Maryland, 7,432; Vermont, 29,098; Maine, [illegible],796; Connecticut, 2,427; Kansas, 9,810; California, 19,[illegible]; Nevada, 3,232; Oregon, 1,431; Rhode Island, 5,200; Ohio, 54,[illegible]; Missouri, 40,000; Iowa, 60,000; Michigan, 20,000; West Virginia, 15,000; New Hampshire, 2,500; Minnesota, [illegible],000; total, 46[illegible],219. The 22 States enumerated cast 213 votes in the Electoral College.

The majorities for McClellan are as follows: Kentucky, 36,[illegible]; New Jersey, 7,300; Delaware, 610; total, [illegible],010. Those three States cast 21 votes in the Electoral College.

Lincoln's majority on the popular vote is 421,399; his electoral majority 192—being 74 more than is necessary to an election. These figures dispose of the Copperhead claim that the Presidential election was a close one, and show the immense preponderance of radical Unionism throughout the loyal States.

WHAT A EUROPEAN OFFICER SAYS OF OUR ARMIES.—A correspondent writing from Grant's army gives the following statement:

A distinguished officer from a foreign service, now wielding the sword in our behalf, gave me lately, his first impressions of the Army of the Potomac. Coming directly from the lounging barrack-room of a citadel city, and only accustomed to witness engagements on open plateaux and the imposing pageant of panoplied warfare, he came unprepared to pierce dense forests or cross deep rivers, rivalling his native Danube, and throwing into shade the historic streams of Europe. He little anticipated battles of a week's duration, the while the two opposing armies completely hid by the luxuriant undergrowth and the thick clustering giants of the forests of Virginia.

I listened with great interest to his description of the surprise and astonishment with which he witnessed whole brigades and divisions boldly pushed into the impenetrable wilds of Virginia. But it was exciting to hear him, in all the glowing emphasis of his imperfect English, describe the troops under fire. Said he: "I had but a poor opinion of your troops when I first saw them in camp. They acted so little like the soldiers of the continent. And when I saw them on the march, I was double surprised and shocked at the loose manner in which they proceeded on the route. But," said he, and his eyes glistened as he spoke, "when the battle commenced, and the legions came up and began to form, then I saw the Army of the Potomac. Your soldiers drill on the battlefield."

GEN. WILCOX DEMANDS THE RELEASE OF HON. PRIVATE ROGER A. PRYOR.—The Richmond Whig of the afternoon of December 1st has a dispatch in which it is stated that Gen. Lee has demanded the surrender of Roger A. Pryor. It appears that Pryor was to be made of some consequence in order to show the world that the "Yankees" have been guilty of another breach of the laws of war. But it seems that it was Gen. Wilcox and not Lee who took action in the case. Lee thinks Pryor is of such little consequence that he denies the impeachment in the following dispatch to the Whig of Dec. 2d:

PETERSBURG, Dec. 2.—Gen. Lee did not demand Roger A. Pryor's release. Gen. Wilcox, in front whose lines he was captured, sent a statement in regard to his capture to Gen. Grant, and asked his release. Gen. Grant referred the application to Gen. Meade, who endorsed upon it that Pryor was captured whilst violating the orders of both armies, and in retaliation for Captain Burbridge's capture by us, and could not be released.

The Academy of Music at San Francisco, says a correspondent of the Sacramento Union, is doing miserably under the present management. On Tuesday evening the audience was less than I ever saw at the place of entertainment before—I doubt whether twenty-five people were in the house. The players are said to be quarreling sadly among themselves, though whether this is cause or effect I cannot pronounce. A large house was drawn on Saturday evening last, when it was announced that Brigham Young, with his wives would be present, in accordance with a bogus correspondence between that worthy and the management, published in the papers. And in fact a personage, in the form of Chief, dressed after the fashion of the Saints, did appear in one of the private boxes, and rose and bowed in response to a call for "Brigham," but only to reap a harvest of a few [illegible] from the gallery, as an impostor, and narrowly escape the possibility of being made a real martyr of, because of not being a genuine Saint.

A young gentleman says he thinks that young ladies who refuse good offers of marriage are too "Nicing by half."

DATES TO JANUARY 25.

Canadian Parliament.

QUEBEC, Jan. 26.—In Parliament last night the Attorney General brought in a bill for the prevention and the suppressing of outrages on the frontier, and [illegible] manufacture and shipment of [illegible] for unlawful purposes, and providing for the seizure on [illegible] of suspected vessels. It also [illegible] notice [illegible] persons abusing unworthily of the hospitality of this country, to remove them. Of the bill is copied in part from an [illegible] and a part from the Act of Congress at Washington in 1838. The bill passed to a second reading.

Destructive Fires at the East.

BUFFALO, Jan. 25.—The fire only ceased last night by burning itself out. All the buildings on the corner of Main and Court streets were destroyed, and three firemen were killed by the fall of them.

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—A fire in East Saginaw this morning destroyed property valued at seventy-five thousand dollars.

HAMILTON, C. W., Jan. 26.—The Ontario Pork Packing establishment and oil beats, were destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Indians on Overland Route.

The station and grain depot of the Overland Mail contractor, at Julesburg, on the Platte, has been abandoned by all except one of the men in charge, in consequence of Indian massacres in the neighborhood. At last accounts the Savages had not attacked the station, and it is now hoped that it will be saved. Gen. Curtis, who commands the troops on the Overland Route, telegraphs from Fort Leavenworth that the New York troops are seven days out from Cottonwood Springs, hunting Indians, and that there is no need of leaving Julesburg, which must be held.

The above was sent in reply to one of several telegrams from Contractor Holliday, urgently appealing for protection for the mail station, stating that if Julesburg should be sacked, the Overland Mail must be suspended until the spring grass is sufficiently advanced to afford subsistence to the live stock of the Company.

Blockade Runners Captured.

FORTRESS MONROE, Jan. 21.—The gunboat Advance arrived from Fort Fisher this morning with a portion of the crews of the blockade runners Stag and Charlotte, caught on the 21st, while endeavoring to run into Wilmington with a cargo of blankets and rifles, being ignorant of the occupation of Fisher by our troops.

Mississippi and Louisiana.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 26.—Late advices from Eastport, Miss., confirm the report that the 18th Tennessee, numbering 600, and stationed at Union, Tenn., had sent word to our lines that they wished to surrender, take the oath of allegiance and go home.

In the Louisiana Senate, on the 7th, resolutions passed to third reading requesting that their delegation in Congress vote for the amendment to the Constitution prohibiting slavery, and pledging that the General Assembly would ratify the amendment.

A Scattering at Richmond.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The Times' special says: Every member of the rebel Cabinet except Trenholm has resigned. Congressmen are withdrawing homeward. Johnston refuses to take Beauregard's department. He desires to take command of any army but his own.

Army of the Potomac.

HEADQUARTERS, Army of the Potomac, Jan. 23.—Quiet prevails along the line of this Army; bad weather prevailing for the past few days making it impracticable to carry out military movements. The deserters coming into our lines are very numerous. They number from 12 to [illegible] per day, all of whom tell the most doleful stories of hardship they had endured, scarcity of provisions &c. They predict the end of the rebellion near.

ONE OF THE LAST OF THE HEROES.—One of the survivors of the Revolution resides at Edinburg, Saratoga Co., N. Y. His name is Samuel Downing, his age is 103 years. Samuel Downing voted for Honest Abraham Lincoln at the recent election. He celebrated his hundredth birthday by cutting down a tree near his residence—a light and pleasant exercise for one of his years.

THE LAST SKATING.—Yesterday may be the last day's skating our people can enjoy until the roll of another winter. The ladies and gentlemen present at the Lake seemed to understand this, and the occasion was one of more attraction than for the whole time previous, during the season. Considerable water had covered the ice, and it was in very bad condition, notwithstanding which numbers variously estimated at from fifteen hundred to two thousand persons, great and small, partook of the festivities. The ladies turned out handsomely, and enlivened the scene with some of the finest skating possible to be executed by fair ones. We recall to our pages the language of the poet to illustrate the true conception of the skater belle, believing our pen quite unable to perform the mission in this respect:

"Along the frozen lake she comes
In linking circles, light and fleet;
The ice-lamps send [illegible]
A welcome to her little feet.

"I see the jaunty hat, the plume
Swerve bird-like in the joyous gale—
The cheeks lit up to burning bloom,
The young eyes sparkling through the veil.

"The quick breath parts her laughing lips,
The white neck shines [illegible]
Her velvet gently sways and dips,
As on she speeds in shell-like sails.

"Men stop and smile to see her go;
They gaze, they smile in pleased surprise;
They ask her name; they long to show
Some silent friendship in their eyes.

"She glances not; she passes on;
Her steely foot-fall quick and light;
She guesses not the benison
Which follows her on noiseless wings.

"Smooth be her ways, secure her tread
Along the devious lines of life;
From grace to grace serenely led,
A noble maiden, nobler wife."

The honors for the most graceful, successful and accomplished skating, on the part of ladies, were unanimously accorded to Miss O., and we understand the experience, which had taught the lady such an interesting part in the out-door exercise, was of short duration. Of the gentlemen we need say nothing, everybody who has attempted the scale have reaped a fair proportion of enjoyment, and will be the better for it. Now, like the student after vacation, "the time has arrived with us for duty," and we shall bid the ice of Crystal Lake good bye, yet "never any prince expressed a more lively regret for the loss of a servant."

NAVIGATION.—The steamer Cowlitz, Captain Thayer, which left this city yesterday morning for Monticello, returned last evening, unable to make the passage. A point some miles below St. Helens was reached, when the river was found to be "jammed" with rugged, rough ice, which appeared closely cemented, utterly impenetrable. The steamer Cascade had laid at St. Helens over night, and proceeded to Astoria early on yesterday morning, and made her way safely through, it was supposed. The Cowlitz will not make any further attempts to visit Monticello until Monday. The mail steamer Rescue, Captain Olsen, due here on Thursday night, had not arrived up to a late hour last night, and is very probably detained by the ice. The steamer Vancouver, Capt. Turnbull, makes her regular trips every day to Washington Territory soil, landing and receiving passengers a few miles below Vancouver. The steamer Wilson G. Hunt, Capt. Wolfe, according to report will not be enabled to reach the Cascades for some time to come.

SEVERE WEATHER.—Messenger Cann, of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, accompanied by Mr. Ogden of the same Company, arrived in this city last evening, overland from the Dalles. They left the latter place on Wednesday morning, and report very severe weather, deep snow, and bad traveling for nearly the entire distance. Mr. Cann thinks Thursday was the most inclement day he ever experienced in mountain traveling, which he has followed for several years, and in order to keep their animals from perishing it was necessary to leave the river trail, and take to the woods. The Columbia was found to be jammed with ice, and frozen over in many places. By their express we are placed in receipt of Dalles papers up to the 25th inst., with "no later dates from the East."

NEW MUSIC.—Prof. Sinsheim, of the piano and music store on Front street, Post Office building, has placed us under obligations for several pieces of choice music, some of which are quite new and popular. A Fantaisie from Faust, arranged for the Piano by M. Favarger, a similar piece from the opera of Martha, by E. Ketterer, and several songs with music, the Five Belles Polka by Cook, The Stamp Gallop by O'Leary, and "The Return of the old Flag sailing up the Tennessee," words and music by David A. Warden, are among the selection at his store, and for anything further we recommend an inspection of his stock.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES.—Isaac Hotchnor, who suffered incarceration in jail for ten days, for beating his wife the day after Christmas, was jugged again last evening, to await examination to-day, for a repetition of the dram(a). This time he had ejected his better half from the domicil, and her cries attracted a large crowd of bystanders, at the corner of Alder and Front streets, when the cruel "defender of his fireside" hove a stick of wood through an upper story window, which fell upon the heads of the sympathizing public, and he was forthwith taken to jail.

SPIRITUALISM.—Mrs. Pollard, trance medium, delivered her first lecture in Oregon at Willamette Theatre. The subject was upon spiritualism, and was listened to by quite an intelligent audience of our citizens. At the close of the lecture an opportunity was given for any who desired to question the medium, on the subject, but it was not availed of. Mrs. Pollard, we understand intends remaining permanently in this city.

WILLAMETTE THEATRE.—After a season of bell ringing, lectures, etc., we are about to have the drama again. This evening the thrilling melodrama of "Neck of the Wood, or the Jibbenainosay" will be produced with all the original music, terrific descents, and grand effects. We have had the pleasure of witnessing Mr. Waldron in his performance of the Jibbenainosay, and unite with the public in pronouncing it to be his greatest effort. Go and see.

MOIST SLEIGHING.—Several parties were out on the streets, in sleighs yesterday, intent upon having a ride to the music of bells. Early in the morning the "going" was good enough for the purpose, but later in the day it required muscle on the part of the horses, and a monstrous stretch in imagination of the pleasure seeker, to derive any comfort upon the drive. The streets were recognized in their native element last evening, and the Oregon mist filled the atmosphere.

THE FU-SHOT.—The Celestial denizens of our city terminated the festivities incident to their New Year, by a general "muss" among themselves, on Alder street yesterday. They broke into the thoroughfare [illegible] the reception to which they were subjected, and were finally cooled off by snow-balls from the populace.

RECOVERING.—Capt. [illegible], who was severely injured a few days since, by a fall from a horse, we are glad to learn has so far recovered from his injuries as to be able to return to his duty as Post Commissary, at Fort Vancouver.

WATER.—The aqueous fluid was distributed in quantities sufficient to satisfy the cravings of the thirsty, throughout our city yesterday, and we hope it may continue its flow for an indefinite period.

A FAIR SPECIMEN.—The county of Pike, Pennsylvania, presents an instructive lesson of Copperhead politics. But few dared vote for Lincoln in that county, and two or three voted for the Union ticket who were expected to do otherwise. One of these, a Mr. Newman, had his house, barn and grain burned that night, and another sent his wife and children into the woods to escape Copperhead insolence, while he watched his premises. In this county one to every fourteen of the people cannot read and write, while in the good Union county of Lancaster only one in forty are thus ignorant.

WHAT EXQUISITE EMBROIDERY, Mrs. Jones! Pray, how do you find time aside from your domestic duties, to execute such elaborate designs, and trim your own and children's garments in so remarkably elaborate and elegant a style?" "Nothing is easier, my dear Mrs. Brown. The secret is in the [illegible] being the [illegible] Grover & Baker Sewing Machine, which executes not only ordinary family sewing in the best [illegible] full and durable manner, but [illegible] with the same facility [illegible] stitching."

J. W. M. PIPER, Agent for this city.

PREACHING IN THE GERMAN LANGUAGE.—The Rev. G. H. Schmidt will preach on Sunday, Jan. 29th, at 10½ o'clock A. M., at the old Presbyterian Church, corner of Morrison and Third streets. English services at [illegible] P. M.

LE DOYEN'S
SARSAPARILLA, YELLOW DOCK
AND IODINE ALTERATIVE
FOR THE CONSTITUTION.
CLEANSE THE BLOOD.
WITH corrupt, disordered or vitiated Blood you must be sick all over. It may burst out in pimples or sores, or in some active disease, or it may merely keep you listless, depressed and good for nothing. But you cannot have good health while your blood is impure. Sarsaparilla purges out these impurities and stimulates the organs of life into vigorous action, restoring the health and repelling disease. Hence it rapidly cures a variety of complaints which are caused by impurity of the blood, such as Scrofula or King's Evil, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores, Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Cancer or Cancerous Tumors, Sore Eyes, Female Diseases, such as Retention, Irregularity, Suppression, Whites, Sterility, Syphilis or Venereal Diseases, Liver Complaints and Heart Diseases.

Blood and Liver.
This valuable Medicine is now available to the public for the cure of SCROFULA, CONSUMPTION, RHEUMATISM, CANCER, HEART, LIVER AND KIDNEY DISEASES, NEURALGIA, NERVOUS AFFECTIONS, BRONCHITIS, DYSPEPSIA, &c.

AS A TONIC,
its operations are evinced by strengthening the digestive organs and increasing the appetite. In cases of Dyspepsia, Emaciation and Debility, an increased nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine. The patient recovers flesh, strength and color; before too pale, relaxed and feeble, he becomes full, strong and florid.
Are you sick, feeble and complaining? Are you out of order, with your system deranged and your feelings uncomfortable? These symptoms are often the prelude to serious illness. Some fit of sickness is creeping over you, and should be averted by a timely use of the right remedy. Take Le Doyen's Sarsaparilla, and cleanse out the disordered system—purify the blood, and let the fluids move on unobstructed in health again.

AS A LITHONTRIPTIC,
it has no equal, being chemically combined with Iodine, it possesses in a high degree the power of dissolving stone in the Bladder, and an [illegible] of the Kidneys, preventing gravel formation and enlargement of the prostrate glands, irritation of the neck of the bladder, dropsy, etc.

Always reason to fear the consequences, as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption.—[Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.

STOP THAT COUGHING!
Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one desired, by its intrinsic merit, to supercede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but
NEWELL'S
Pulmonary Syrup!
Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.
WHAT KILLED HIM?
Dr. Hall in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds: "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance.

A Greenback Case!
HAVING BEEN COMPELLED TO ACCEPT OF Legal Tender Notes at par since the 17th day of December, 1862, for the rent of my handsome Brick Store, corner of Morrison and Front streets, I feel compelled to announce for the benefit of the public at large, that Jacob Mayer
Leased the Building of me on the 17th day of February, 1862, for a term of years, at which time there was no such currency in vogue, and it is understood the terms were CASH. Since the date above stated I have received the depreciated currency regularly, under protest for the rent of the CITY OF PARIS STORE,
Making less than two-fifths of the real amount said Mayer was to pay. He had secured the building at very advantageous rates, and even were he now to comply with his contract, and pay in COIN, would be getting the best bargain in the city. I make this statement to show the public what kind of a man he must be to take such undue advantage of the times to convert a few dollars to himself by LEGAL SWINDLING. The public can readily see [illegible] such tenants. G. W. VAUGHN.

[illegible]

A Twilight Wooing.

It's an awful thing to lose a friend by marriage! To see him drop into your room occasionally, always with a paper parcel under his arm, suggestive of lace and ribbons, instead of having him all to yourself, day in and day out. To know that the blue-breathed evening cigar will inevitably be abbreviated by "Oh, my wife will be anxious, if I'm not at home by eight o'clock!" To tell him about the pretty girl with the pink bonnet that you met in the stage yesterday, and be generally confidential, and then find your tongue suddenly paralyzed by the conviction that he will tell his wife every word you have been saying. There's no use talking about the thing—it's actually indescribable.

Do you suppose I didn't feel jealous when Jack Marelyffe got married? Do you suppose the green-eyed monster didn't inspire me with all sorts of unamiable feelings toward the little brown-eyed beauty who had cut me out so completely? It took me some time to reconcile me to the new state of things. But when I found out that she didn't object to my sitting on the balcony and speaking with Jack—nay, that she actually lighted our cigars for us, and then brought her little foot-stool and sat down beside us—that she laughed like a peal of merry bells at our bachelor chances and mishaps—and that she liked to have me come to dinner on Sundays, then I thought Jack's wife wasn't so bad an institution after all. And one day, when she brought out her tiny wicker work-basket, and stood on tip-toe to sew the loose button upon my coat, I capitulated in good earnest.

"Jack," said I "your wife is—well not exactly an angel, for I don't believe in angels about the house—but the sweetest little woman I ever set my eyes upon. You wont be jealous, old fellow?"

"Jealous—no!" said Jack stretching his neck so as to look after the light, disappearing figure. "But I'll tell you what, Arthur—you ought to see Mary's sister."

Sure enough, about two weeks afterward, as I came in at the sweet-briar-shadowed gate, and paused to look at the crimson clove pinks just opening their fringed petals, the silver tones of another voice sounded in the low-eaved piazza, and almost before I knew it Jack Marelyffe's arm was through mine, and he was introducing me to a duplicate edition of his wife—a scarlet-lipped, arch-eyed girl in white muslin, with a coral bracelet on her arm.

For that moment I was gone—I didn't know whether I sat in Jack's velvet easy chair or on the top of the rail fence; I said "No, I thank you," when Mrs. Jack asked me how I was—I stirred my cup of chocolate with a [illegible], and tried to put the table cloth into my pocket, in lieu of a handkerchief—and [illegible] myself irrevocably by [illegible] into the cradle, and [illegible] the baby on the marble mantle-piece.

"[illegible] Mr. Arden!" exclaimed Marelyffe, "what is the matter?"

"I believe—I think—I've got a cold in my head!" I faltered, looking at the time straight at Agnes, who was playing with her coral bracelet, and pretending not to laugh.

"Jack," said I, that evening, as he went out to the gate with me, "there's no use trying to mince matters—if I can't win Miss Agnes I shall take arsenic."

Jack squeezed my hand; he had "been through the mill" himself.

"Do you think she cares for me, Jack?" I asked, plaintively, about a month afterward. "I declare, honestly, I've the greatest mind in the world to jump off the pier, or hang myself, peaceably. Now what does she mean by flirting with that red-whiskered Carew? Oh, Jack, do be merciful—tell me what you really think."

Poor Marelyffe! It was about the thirtieth time he had been asked the same question.

"Why, how can I tell, Arthur? You might as well ask me to read the Hindoo alphabet as to decipher the mysteries of a woman's heart. Why dont you ask her yourself?"

"Me ask her!" and the cold chills ran through me like veins of ice. "Jack I dare not, for my life!"

Jack burst into a laugh.

"Well, I can't give any better advice," said he, "only remember, my boy, 'faint heart never won fair lady.'"

He turned away, and left me standing in the amber flush of the twilight, among the crimson clusters of cinnamon roses, and the tall coronals of gleaming lillies. Up in the rosy sky the new moon hung, a curved thread of silver, and one bright star, bore its lamp of pearl against the radiant horizon. I looked absently up to the fair atmosphere—down at the blossoming garden of flowers, thinking in the midst of my perplexity how like the blue heaven was to Agnes' eyes, and marvelling that the pink roses were so near akin to the dainty color that came and went upon her silk soft cheek.

Beside the low French window that opened upon the piazza door, I saw the glow of muslin drapery through the fragrant gloom—it was where Mrs. Marelyffe was wont to sit with her baby. I caught the refrain of the low, delicious cradle song she warbled in the tiny sleeper's ear. A bright thought struck me—I would take woman's wit into my counsel.

"Mary," said I, sitting down on the piazza step, and leaning my head against the rose-wreathed pillar just opposite the window, "I wish you'd tell me what to do,—I'm desperately in love with your sister Agnes, and—dont laugh now—I haven't the courage to tell her so."

I paused an instant and then went on, "I love her better than life. No, that is not saying enough—I would die to make her happy. Oh, Mary, cannot you give me a word of encouragement? I dare not tell her my love, because my heart sinks so in dread from the one little word, 'No!' Will she speak it, do you think?"

There was no answer still.

"Mary, will she break my heart?"

I spoke with trembling accents fresh from the deepest recesses of my soul—the very air seemed to sob around me as it ceased. One instant of silence in the still pulsing fragrance of midsummer twilight, and then there was a fluttering of light, azure robes, the fall of a fairy foot-step, [illegible] a soft white arm, gleaming with the clasp of a blood-red coral bracelet was around my neck—a shower of brown curls, [illegible] on my breast.

"She will not—she never will."

The voice was that of Agnes Day; I held the coy, coquettish trembler to my heart.

Life has been brimming with sweets ever since—many a golden moment has passed to sprinkle its chalice of joy around my footsteps, as it passed into the world of bygones; but, in all my existence, there never came a second time like that.

"So, I'm really to have a brother-in-law," she said, putting aside the roses and coming forward just as the wicket fastening clicked under Jack's hand, and the fiery spark of his cigar flashed through the purple gleaming, slowly traveling up the garden walk.

"Hallo," said he, pausing abruptly as Agnes tried vainly to escape from my detaining arm. "Oh, I see now! Well—upon my—word! for such a bashful young gentleman, you've been remarkably expeditious! Accept of my congratulations, Aggie—ditto, Arthur."

A little boy had a colt and dog, and his generosity was often tried by visitors asking him, just to hear what he would say, to give them one or both of his pets. One day he told a gentleman present that he might have the colt, reserving the dog, much to the surprise of his mother, who asked: "Why, Jackey why didn't you give him the dog?" "Say nothing, mother; when he goes to get the colt, I'll set the dog on him."

"Have you relatives in the army?" asked a Second Lieutenant of a lady sitting in the car beside him. "Yes, sir." "From what State?" "Illinois," replied the lady. "Ah, yes; Illinois [patronizingly] has sent some fine troops, ma'am. Your husband wears a strap, I presume?" "Yes sir." "May I inquire his name? I am acquainted with a good many brother officers there." "Certainly, sir—Ulysses S. Grant." Exit Lieutenant for the smoking car.

A young Cambridge student once contended with Johnson, when he met at Boswell's, that prosaic poetry and poetical prose must be equally good. "No, sir," said the doctor; "a man may like brandy in his tea, though not tea in his brandy."

The student was asked afterwards what he thought of Dr. Johnson. "I think," said he, "that he is the great bear of conversation—his diction is all contradiction."

A poor Frenchman being aroused from sleep by his wife; with the cry, "Get up, Baptiste, there's a robber in the house," calmly answered: "Don't let us molest him. Let him ransack the house, and if he should find anything of value we'll take it away from him."

It is stated to be a rule of war in the far Western Territories that "a town is a place where whisky is sold." By means of this rule the courts distinguish real towns from those which exist only on paper plans of land speculators.

MISSION MILLS.—The Mission Woolen Mills, during the past year (1864), says the Alta, turned out 30,000 pairs of blankets of various colors for the trade, and 15,000 blankets for the army. In addition, they made 150,000 yards of flannel of various colors; 15,000 yards of cloth and cassimeres; 45,000 dozen over and under flannel shirts and drawers; besides uniforms for St. Mary's College and other institutes; uniforms for the California militia, city and State; uniforms for the Russia fleet and the police force. They also introduced the manufacture of carpets.

QUICKSILVER.—Last year the New Almaden mine produced 42,820 flasks of quicksilver. There were exported during the year 36,[illegible] flasks of quicksilver to various mines.

WEEKLY COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Portland, January 27th, 1865.

The Columbia river is closed from the mouth of the Willamette up to the highest point of navigation, which depresses trade, not only cutting us off from the interior of our mining regions, but rendering it inconvenient for ocean crafts to enter port. The present moderate weather will, however, obviate the last named interruption, should it continue for twenty-four hours.

Such cold weather as we have experienced for the week past, thermometer ranging from 5° to 15° below freezing, is quite remarkable for this region; and not being generally prepared for it, brings disastrous results both to the commercial and agricultural community. We have heard as yet of no losses sustained particularly [illegible] of the present inclemency, but it is natural to suppose there are instances. Although farmers may have been better provided than in some previous years, it is well to pay attention to these things annually.

The domestic produce market, for the period under review, has been decidedly dull, scarce anything offering to elicit a transaction.

The non arrival of any vessels in port since our last report has a tendency to leave on hand a very large amount of grain and flour for shipment, but as several vessels are now due it is thought by another week the quantity will be materially reduced.

The sch. Crosby is expected every hour, with a cargo of coal from Nanaimo, for the Portland Gas-Light Company, and will have quick dispatch for Victoria.

As the stmr. Jenny Jones has failed to make her appearance we consider the report of her starting from Victoria for this place, on the 11th inst., a mistake.
